First Nations Health Authority
Health through wellness

EMPLOYMENT OPPORTUNITY

Deputy Chief Medical Officer, Public Health

Location: Negotiable

- Do you want to be a part of a remarkable and dynamic leadership team?
- Are you innovative; 'outside the box' problem solver; and do you lead with passion and integrity?
- Is making a difference in the lives of others a strong value that you believe in?

As Deputy Chief Medical Officer you will provide centralized and strategic focus to promote and protect the health and wellness of BC First Nation peoples and communities while co-leading with the COO and CMO.

You will have the opportunity to act as a champion for the First Nations philosophy and approach to population and public health by providing leadership in the areas of Environmental Health, Health Surveillance, Communicable Disease Management, Population Health and Health & Wellness Promotion.

Education & Experience

- A Medical Degree recognized in Canada
- Fellowship with the Royal College of Physicians and Surgeons of Canada in Population and Public Health, or a Master's Degree in Public Health
- Eligible for a license to practice medicine in BC, in good standing with the relative regulatory body
- Significant, recent and relevant medical practice experience
- Experience in Aboriginal or Indigenous setting is an asset
- Proven experience in leading teams including physicians

What you can expect from us?

If you are looking for a great place to work, where your contributions are valued, and truly make a difference, then First Nations Health Authority (FNHA) may be the place for you!

FNHA supports personal and professional growth, in-house training, a paid volunteer day, personal days and a unique orientation program. We offer competitive salary and extended group benefits packages, including a robust pension plan.
